OPENING ADDRESS

Dear Colleagues,

The Korean Association of Slavic Eurasia Studies (KASEUS) cordially invites you to the 12th East Asian Conference on Slavic Eurasian Studies (EACSES), to be held in Hanyang University, Seoul. And the KASEUS sincerely welcome scholars from around the world and the next generation of researchers who participate in this conference.

Since the unprecedented COVID-19 pandemic, the world embraced new hopes and awaited the moment free from the pandemic. Yet, various conflicts have emerged all over the world, particularly in Europe and the Middle East. The Russia-Ukraine war, which erupted in early 2022, can be considered a geopolitical upheaval in the 21st century.

To address the challenges posed by the Russia-Ukraine war, the Slavic-Eurasian scholarly communities engage in profound discussions and extensive analyses for a new era after the conflict. Thus, the theme, “Re-building Peace in Eurasia beyond Conflicts: Humanistic and Socio-Cultural Reinterpretations” is not only a critical topic for academic discussion but also an urgent task that demands our immediate attention.

We anticipate insightful analyses and meaningful solutions to the current challenges from humanistic and socio-cultural perspectives. The 12th East Asian Conference on Slavic Eurasian Studies aims to serve as a platform for understanding the essence of the conflict, exploring innovative approaches to peace, and reinterpreting these issues within diverse cultural and social contexts.

KASEUS is honored to host the 12th EACSES under the theme, “Re-building Peace in Eurasia beyond Conflicts: Humanistic and Socio-Cultural Reinterpretations.” This conference seeks to provide a venue for exchanging constructive ideas that foster peace across Eurasia by offering fresh interpretations of the region through humanities and socio-cultural studies. Despite the challenges, we believe this academic gathering will uncover pathways to solidarity, peace, and hope for the future of Eurasia. We look forward to your participation in making this conference a constructive and memorable scholarly event.
